For Ebel, it's a watch that allows the company to stand apart from other watch manufacturers. A reinterpretation of Ebel's original Sport Classic, which was released in 1977 and has since become the company's signature watch, the Classic Hexagon's main feature is its Swiss automatic movement with a specialized GMT complication.

Ebel offers styles with all kinds of dials. One of my favorites is the Ebel Classic Hexagon GMT watch, typified by five screws on the case, faceted hands, and simple dial. I so much like the integration of the second time zone display and the big date window. It is like having another watch in your watch, especially when you need to keep track of time on a travel in a different time zone.
